

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, No C-08-03124 VRW
Plaintiff, ORDER
v
CALIFORNIA INSURANCE GUARANTEE
ASSOCIATION,
Defendant.

/

On March 20, 2009, the court granted California Insurance
Guarantee Association's ("CIGA") motion to dismiss under FRCP
12(b)(1) on the ground of claim preclusion. Doc #29. The court entered judgment on March 23, 2009. Doc #30. The United States now moves to alter or amend the judgment under FRCP 59(e) "to correct a manifest error of law." Doc #31. Because the court finds no clear error of law in its prior ruling, the United States' motion is denied.

I

The complaint dismissed by the March 20, 2009 order alleged that a United States armed services veteran ("Veteran Doe") became injured by a dog attack during his employment in March 1991. Doc #1 at 1. Veteran Doe received medical care from the United States Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Loma Linda, California. Id. Veteran Doe submitted a workers compensation claim to his carrier, Superior National Insurance Company. Id. Superior National became insolvent in 1992. Id. Thereafter, according to the complaint, CIGA assumed Superior National's insurance policy obligations. Id at 2-3.

The California legislature created CIGA under the Guarantee Act to provide a means for paying benefits to insureds when insurers become insolvent. See Cal Ins Code § 1063 et seq. California requires each insurer admitted to transact property and casualty insurance within the state to join CIGA. Id.

On October 12, 2004, the United States filed a lien with the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board ("WCAB") for the expenses incurred in treating Veteran Doe on the theory that CIGA must reimburse the United States for the treatment that was covered by Veteran Doe's policy with now-insolvent Superior National. Doc #17-2, Exh A. In the proceedings before the WCAB, CIGA contended that California law excluded the United States' lien. Doc #11, Exh 3 at 30. On September 8, 2006, administrative law judge Rodney M Johnson rejected the United States' lien, on the ground that CIGA has no obligations under state law to the federal government and, while the United States would have been able to recover a lien from an insurance carrier, CIGA is not an insurance carrier. Id.

1 After the filing of multiple briefs and two motions for
2 reconsideration, the WCAB issued its final order on April 23, 2007
3 denying reconsideration and constituting a final order denying the 4 United States' lien claim. Doc #11-3, Exh 15 at 40. While the 5 United States argued that 38 USC § 1729 entitled the federal
6 government to repayment for medical expenses from CIGA, the WCAB
7 held that section 1729 does not apply to CIGA because "CIGA is not 8 an 'insurance carrier' or 'state agency' that is a 'third party' as 9 defined by and covered by section 1729 of title 38 of the United 10 States Code * * *. " Id at 41.

11 The United States did not exercise its right of appeal in 12 state court by way of applying for a writ of review within 45 days
13 of the WCAB order (Cal Labor Code § 5950). After the time for 14 review in state court passed, the United States filed its complaint
15 herein on June 27, 2008. Doc #1.

16 On March 20, 2009, the court granted defendant's motion
17 to dismiss this action on the basis of claim preclusion. Doc #29.
18 The court reasoned that the Full Faith and Credit Act, 28 USC §
19 1738, mandates that federal courts treat state court judgments with 20 the same respect they would receive in the rendering state. Id at 21 4. The court noted that Skysign Int'l v Honolulu, 276 F3d 1109, 22 1115 (9th Cir 1994) extended the claim preclusion principle to
23 state administrative adjudications and that United States v Utah
24 Construction & Mining Co, 384 US 394, 422 (1966) set forth three
25 requirements that administrative determinations must meet in order
26 to have preclusive effect. Doc #29 at 4. The Utah Construction
27 test, also adopted by California law, requires that: (1) the 28 administrative agency act in a judicial capacity, (2) the agency

1 resolve disputed issues of fact properly before it and (3) the 2 parties have an adequate opportunity to litigate. Doc #29 at 4,
3 citing 384 US at 422. The court then found that the proceedings
4 before the WCAB, a "Constitutional court" under California law, met
5 each of the Utah Construction requirements. Id at 5-6.

6

7 II

8 A motion to alter or amend judgment pursuant to FRCP
9 59(e) is appropriate if a party presents newly discovered evidence,
10 the court committed clear error, the initial decision was 11 manifestly unjust or there is an intervening change in controlling
12 law. School Dist No 1J, Multnomah County, Or v ACands, Inc, 5 F3d
13 1255, 1263 (9th Cir 1993).

14 The United States argues that the court should alter or 15 amend its March 20 order because the court made a clear error of 16 law. More specifically, the United States argues that the WCAB was 17 compelled to follow state law under Greener v WCAB, 6 Cal 4th 1028
18 (1993) and therefore did not have jurisdiction to rule that the 19 California laws on which the WCAB based its decision were preempted
20 by federal law. Doc #31 at 9-11. Because the WCAB did not have 21 jurisdiction over the preemption issue, according to the United 22 States, "the WCAB's final order [did] not have preclusive effect"
23 based on Shaw v Calif Dept of Alcoholic Beverage Control, 788 F2
24 600 (9th Cir 1986). Doc #31 at 11.

25 In Shaw, the plaintiffs sought damages and injunctive
26 relief against the California Department of Alcoholic Beverage
27 Control ("ABC"), the director of ABC, the City of San Jose, the 28 police department and the chief of police. 788 F2d at 603. The

1 complaint alleged that a prior proceeding before the ABC improperly
2 revoked the plaintiffs' liquor license in violation of their
3 constitutional rights and that the other defendants engaged in a 4 discriminatory campaign against plaintiffs in violation of the 5 Equal Protection Clause. Shaw, 788 F2d at 603. The city, the 6 police department and the chief of police argued that the prior 7 proceeding before the ABC barred claims against them for 8 constitutional violations that occurred prior to the ABC hearing
9 based on issue preclusion. Id at 606-07. The Ninth Circuit found
10 that issue preclusion did not bar the constitutional claims against 11 the city, the police department and the chief of police because the 12 ABC did not have jurisdiction to decide the issue of the 13 constitutional violations directly. Id at 607. The Ninth Circuit
14 emphasized that the ABC's jurisdiction was limited by California
15 law to decide liquor license revocation and did not extend to 16 claims of police misconduct. Id at 608.

17 The United States, here, argues that Shaw requires that 18 the court alter its previous determination that the decision by the 19 WCAB bars this suit because the WCAB did not have jurisdiction to 20 find that state law was preempted by federal law. The United 21 States points out, and CIGA concedes, that the WCAB did not have 22 jurisdiction to declare a California statute unconstitutional or 23 preempted by federal law. Greener v Workers' Compensation Appeals
24 Board, 6 Cal 4th 1028, 1038 (1993), citing Cal Const, Art III, §
25 3.5. According to the United States, the WCAB decision cannot bar
26 this action because the WCAB's inability to rule that section 1729
27 preempted California law means the WCAB's decision lacks preclusive
28 effect under Shaw.

1 The United States, however, fails to discuss in depth the
2 holding in Shaw that is most analogous to the action at bar.
3 Before Shaw addressed issue preclusion relating to the city, the 4 police department and the chief of police, Shaw found that the 5 plaintiff's claim for an injunction against the director of the ABC
6 reinstating the liquor license was barred by claim preclusion. 788
7 Fed 2d at 605-06. Claim preclusion barred the claim against the 8 director of the ABC despite the fact that the claim arose under 9 constitutional law and "[t]he ABC's jurisdiction [was] limited to 10 determining whether a liquor license should be revoked or 11 suspended." 788 F2d at 608. Shaw stated: "The California
12 Legislature has set up a detailed and comprehensive scheme for the 13 review of ABC decisions and it is clear that a collateral attack of 14 the type the [plaintiffs] seek to engage in would not be allowed."
15 Id at 606. The court infers in the present context that Shaw
16 teaches that the proper method for reviewing the administrative 17 proceedings and bringing those constitutional challenges was for 18 the United States to appeal the WCAB decision in state court rather 19 than to bring a collateral attack in federal court. To be sure,
20 this raises an interesting dilemma for the United States as removal
21 to federal court of any such state court proceeding may not be 22 possible. See 28 USC § 1445(c).

23 Here, the WCAB had jurisdiction over the action brought 24 before it by the United States — a workers' compensation medical 25 lien. See, e.g., Hand Rehabilitation Center v Workers' Compensation
26 Appeals Board, 34 Cal App 4th 1204, 1214 (1995). In fact, the 27 WCAB's jurisdiction over such actions is exclusive and reviewable
28 in California appellate courts. Id. Accordingly, despite the fact

1 that the WCAB was unable to reach the federal preemption question
2 posed by the United States, Shaw requires any review of the WCAB
3 decision to proceed through the channels designated by the 4 California legislature — the California appellate courts.

5 The United States argues in the alternative that under 6 the Utah Construction requirements, the court should deny
7 preclusive effect to the WCAB decision because the inability of the 8 WCAB to reach the United States' preemption argument denied the 9 United States a "full and fair opportunity to litigate" under Utah
10 Construction. Doc #31 at 13-14.

11 There is no merit to this argument. As the court's 12 previous order made clear, the United States received a full and 13 fair hearing before the WCAB. Doc #29 at 5-6. The WCAB's
14 inability to reach the preemption issue did not come into play
15 because the WCAB determined that the potentially-preempting federal 16 statute did not apply to CIGA. Doc #11-3, Exh 15 at 42-44. But 17 even if the United States felt that the WCAB's limited jurisdiction
18 affected the outcome of the proceeding, the United States had an 19 opportunity to appeal the decision. Cal Labor Code § 5950. The 20 Ninth Circuit has held that the right to appeal to courts with 21 jurisdiction to declare statutes unenforceable supplies litigants a 22 full and fair hearing even when the agencies first hearing the 23 claims lack that jurisdiction. Dash v Alcoholic Beverage Control
24 Appeals Bd, 683 F2d 1229, 1233-35 (9th Cir 1982).

25 //

26 //

27 //

28 //

1 Accordingly, the United States' arguments that the WCAB
2 lacked jurisdiction to find that federal law preempts California
3 state law does not reveal a clear error of law in the court's March
4 20, 2009 order. The United States motion to alter or amend that
5 order is therefore DENIED.

6
7 IT IS SO ORDERED.

8
9

10 VAUGHN R WALKER
11 United States District Chief Judge
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28